PROUD PARTNERS FROM THE BEGINNING

Back in 1977, the Technology Club of Syracuse, now the Technology Alliance of Central New York (TACNY), imagined a place where science could be discovered through hands-on exploration. Partnering with the Junior League of Syracuse and the local chapter of the National Council of Jewish Women, they turned that vision into reality.

In 1981, the Discovery Center of Science opened in a small downtown storefront—the first interactive science museum in Upstate New York. From the very beginning, TACNY was there, helping plant the seed that grew into today's MOST.

"Join TACNY and tap into the science behind your favorite pint! Our mission is to facilitate community awareness, appreciation, and education of technology; and to collaborate with like-minded organizations across Central New York."

T&J proudly supports the MOST and the incredible role it plays in our community - giving children and families a place to explore science, embrace technology, ask questions, and discover new possibilities.

Because when curiosity is encouraged, possibilities are endless.
